Will Devote Energy and Ability to Ease Anxieties and Burdens of the People

Wants Cabinet To Be of Type Able to Perform Duties Capably

By Raymond Wilcove

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)

HARRISBURG, Nov. 10.—(INS)—Elected by an overwhelming vote, Governor-elect Arthur H. James today dedicated himself to "lifting and lightening in some measure the burdens of the people of this State."

At his Plymouth home the victorious Republican candidate for Governor, happy over his success, said he had not yet given much thought to the selection of cabinet officials.

"I am very proud and happy over the confidence and faith which the men and women of the State had in my candidacy," he said. "I shall devote every bit of energy and ability I possess to see that the anxieties and burdens of the people of the State will be in some measure lifted and lightened."

"The cabinet officers will be arms of the government and we want to see that they are the type that will be able to perform the duties capably," James said he would probably leave today for an undisclosed destination for a rest.

Meanwhile the Republican victory in Pennsylvania increased in proportions as the returns neared completion. Charles Alvin Jones, by almost 290,000 votes, but ran far behind his running-mate, U. S. Sen. James J. Davis, whose majority over Gov. George H. Earle, his Democratic opponent, rose to more than 400,000.

The Republicans captured all State offices and won back control of the State House of Representatives. The new House lineup: Republicans, 125; Democrats, 80, with 105 votes necessary for a majority. The GOP thus reversed a 154-54 Democratic majority.

Here and There in Bucks County Towns

"Democracy and Crisis," title of a book of Harold Laski's, would seem to be a short and accurate description of the world today," declared Dr. J. Raymond Walsh, noted economist, formerly of Harvard University, speaking on "Labor in Relation to Peace" before an audience of men and women at the Fall meeting of the Bucks County Women's International League held at Salem Reformed Church on Friday.

Mrs. John H. Folinsbee, of New Hope, county chairman, presided at the meeting, declared Dr. Walsh's words were a challenge to all. "Our own battles of democracy are going to be fought on our own battlefields, out of the inherent characteristics of our own economy," she said.

During the afternoon business meeting Mrs. Samuel McDowell of Lahaska and Columbia University, county legislative chairman, told of hearing the congressional candidates, Mr. Frey and Mr. Gerlach, speak on "Our Position" at the Allentown Peace Conference.

It was reported by Mrs. Bernhard Ostrolenk that Mrs. Richard Carey of Holmquist School will head the new refugee committee as part of one which Dr. Herta Karus of Bryn Mawr College is forming to help WIL members who are suffering in Europe.

Pastors will urge their congregations to co-operate in the fight against tuberculosis on November 27th, which is designated as Christmas Seal Sunday by the Bucks County Tuberculosis Association. Many Sunday Schools will also co-operate in this life saving effort.

"Here is a cause in which all churches can unite," said a representative of the association. "Tuberculosis is everybody's problem. The theme of this year's Christmas Seal, 'Protect Your Home from Tuberculosis,' makes the campaign one of special significance to the churches."

"Tuberculosis is one of the misfortunes which disrupt family life. It breaks up more homes than any other disease. When a father or mother is stricken, separation from the family is generally necessary."

"Christmas Seals are doing effective work in preventing tuberculosis and thus are keeping together families which might otherwise be separated. One of the fundamentals of Christianity is preservation of the home. The Christmas Seal campaign offers every one a simple and practical way of doing a neighborly and Christian act."

"Notices in bulletins, display of posters, talks before various meetings and the distribution of literature are other ways in which the churches and Sunday Schools will co-operate. The sale of Christmas Seals begins Thanksgiving Day."

The annual directors meeting of the Woodside Needlework Guild was held at the home of Mrs. Wendell F. Oliver, president.

Mrs. Oliver reported 600 garments and $23 had been received, and one new director this year, Mrs. H. G. Howe, who was also named publicity director.

The garments will be distributed throughout the year to Morrisville Nursing Service, Morrisville Welfare, Yardley Welfare, deserving private families, Kensington Neighborhood House, Richmond Soup House, Frankford, Pa., and a small supply of garments to American Friends' Service Committee.

Others at the meeting were: Mrs. J. Augustus Cadwallader, treasurer; Mrs. Clarence Haney, secretary; Miss Elizabeth S. Weeks, Miss Paulina Leigh, Mrs. George Willard, Miss Elizabeth Cadwallader and Mrs. Floyd S. Platt. Mrs. Oliver announced the annual national meeting will be held early next Spring in Philadelphia.

Supervising Principal J. Leonard Halderman, at a meeting of the Doylestown School Board, announced that the new junior-senior high school project of $356,500 has been approved.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT

(Copyright, 1938, by The Baltimore Sun)

Two Things Made Clear

Washington, Nov. 9.

THE elections of Tuesday provide many angles from which the vote can be analyzed and for a long time more or less profound deductions will be made. The allies of the losers and the claims of the winners will be equally distorted and there will be no agreement among the professionals. None can be expected.

NEVERTHELESS, certain things stand out so clearly that the average citizen will need no one to point them out or interpret. One of these, while general in its nature, is so vital that it should take precedence over every individual victory or defeat. The theory that the Federal machine as expanded under the New Deal is politically irresistible has been definitely disproved.

SINCE 1934, many politicians in both parties have believed that the ability of this Administration to finance its fights with the public money, plus the fact that one way or another more than 20,000,000 people were living on Federal funds, constituted too great a political asset to be overcome. The relief vote alone gave New Deal candidates an enormous advantage. Add to it the weight of the other subsidized classes, the organized labor leaders, the radical groups, the unexampled propaganda, a popular President like Mr. Roosevelt and the setup seemed invincible, indeed. Such at any rate was the feeling among many opponents of the New Deal; and it was the profound conviction of the little group of political strategists around the President, practically proclaimed by his closest friend, Mr. Hopkins, in his "We are going to spend and spend and spend and elect, elect and elect" remark of last summer.

Roosevelt Faces Situation

New York, Nov. 10.—President Roosevelt returns to Washington today to confront a set of conditions entirely new to him, and quite undreamed of a few weeks ago.

It includes: A new Congress, convening in January, with a definite right wing trend that is capable of thwarting or stopping the New Deal as it has developed in the past six years.

The problem of co-operating with a dozen "unfriendly" state governments—"unfriendly" in the sense that they are Republican, and successfully opposed the New Deal in Tuesday's election.

A resurgent Republican party, successful on Tuesday after eight monotonous years of continuous defeat, and already dreaming dreams concerning 1940.

It means that hereafter Mr. Roosevelt is going to find the going considerably tougher than it has been heretofore. No longer will he have a willing, complacent Congress to do his bidding.

The Democrats did not, numerically, lose control of Congress in the mid-term election. But the Democrats who are left are for the most part of the conservative or right wing type, who have no particular love for the New Deal and its lieutenant.

CONTENTED CITIZENRY IS VERY ESSENTIAL

If People Are Happy and Contented, There Are Unlikely To Be Disturbances

ESSAY WRITER SAYS

This is the fourth of a group of essays written by students of the Bristol high school by way of observing "National Education Week." The essay today is entitled "Accepting New Civic Responsibilities."

By Katharine Pitzenko

For years many people in the United States have been shirking their responsibilities as good citizens and allowing politicians to run the government to please themselves. Two things are dependent upon proper administration: first, the happiness of the citizens, and second, the future of our civilization. If our citizens are happy and contented we need not fear strikes and uprisings, and if this generation helps to administer the government in an honest and sincere way, we need not fear for coming generations. We must educate the children at home and at school, to be good citizens and instill in them the love of peace and security.

There are four branches of the government: federal, state, county and local. If each person would share in the responsibilities of our local government we would be helping the county, state and federal governments.

In our own town we are trying to give to all the citizens a fine school system, a board of health, many churches and clean amusements. We

Merchants Plan To Decorate Mill Street For Christmas

At a meeting last night of the Mill Street Business Men's Association Christmas Decorating Committee, Chairman David Norman suggested that the Christmas lights, streamers and decorations be arranged Thanksgiving evening. A new innovation this year will be evergreen trees placed at the top of the electric poles, along both sides of Mill street, in addition to the lights and laurel strung overhead across the street. The committee in charge of this work will be Edward Wallace, Robert Weik and Abe Popkin.

Arrangements will be made to have Santa Claus arrive in Bristol officially in person on December 7th. He will be ushered in appropriately with fanfare and band on a beautiful float under the supervision of Edward Gallagher. Robert Weik and Thomas Proffy have offered their able assistance in decorating the float and throne for Santa Claus' reception.

Edgar Spencer, David Norman and Wesley Spencer will arrange to have public broadcasting facilities to announce events in advance to immediate and adjacent communities. This will also be used during the reception and parade.

A large Christmas tree placed at the foot of Mill and Radcliffe streets will be more thoroughly decorated, as Edgar Spencer, Robert Weik, Alfred Moffo and Thomas Proffy are planning a surprise feature.

The attendance at the meeting was unusually large and the merchants present showed an increase of enthusiasm and willingness to participate in the activities of the association.

Substantial refreshments were served by the host, Thomas Proffy, assisted by his son, Frank. Those present were: Alfred Moffo, A. H. Queen, Edgar Spencer, Abe Popkin, Lewis Smith, Edward Gallagher, Robert Weik, Edward Wallace, Wesley Spencer, Marty Green and David Norman.

The next meeting of the general committee will be held Tuesday evening, November 15th.

STATE ROAD BRIDGE CRASHES AS IT IS BEING DISMANTLED

Falls Into 14 Feet of Water at Croydon; One Worker Gets Wet

LENGTHENS THE WORK

Will Require at Least Week More; Boat Crane Will Be Sent to Scene

With workmen engaged with acetylene torches but a few hours in dismantling the State Road bridge over Neshaminy Creek, yesterday, the center portion of the structure suddenly dropped into 14 feet of water at 3.30 a. m., taking with it one workman.

The piers and sections at either end remained intact.

The workman, Joseph Sampson, 42, Philadelphia, was uninjured when he found himself suddenly catapulted into the stream, but was the victim of a thorough soaking about the lower portion of his body.

The time originally allotted to dismantling the bridge, which is of steel, with a wooden floor, was 10 days. With the sudden and untimely hurling into the creek bed, the period will be extended at least a week, according to representatives of the contracting firm in charge.

Yesterday morning a corps of workmen arrived on the scene. They started operations of dismantling the bridge in portions, using acetylene torches. The work progressed gradually, when at 3.30, with no warning, but with great groanings, the steel and boards gave way. When the mass finally settled in the waters of the creek, much of it was submerged.

Sampson, engaged as a burner, and working at the time on the top of the metal work which also forms the outer rails of the bridge, was carried down with the structure. He managed to keep a firm hold, and is said to be uninjured. He resides at 2845 Livingston street, Philadelphia.

A rope was thrown to Sampson by his fellow workmen who, near the end of the bridge, managed to keep free of the falling part. Sampson was aided to shore, and taken to the small office of the company near the Croydon end of the bridge, where he donned dry clothing.

The contractor engaged in dismantling is employed by the contractor in charge of erecting the new span and approaches, the main contract being let by the State of Pennsylvania.

It will be necessary to have a boat crane sent to the scene to aid in freeing the one portion, 90 feet in length, from the water.

The guests were assembled at Miss Shelly's home when Miss Veitch arrived and she was completely surprised. She was presented with a large white box tied with blue cellophane ribbon. In the box were the various kitchen articles from the guests.

The evening was enjoyed playing games and refreshments were served at a late hour. A miniature bride and groom formed the centerpiece on the table.

Those present were: Misses Dorothy Kramers, Julia Moranti, Elizabeth Mulligan, Margaret McCauley, Sara-May Bassett, Rose Veitch, Frances Shelly, Jessie Shelly, Mrs. Edmund Green, Mrs. William Veitch, Mrs. Frank Green, Mrs. Albert Tentucci, Mrs. Rose Kenner, Mrs. Hannah Peoples, Mrs. Joseph Ferry, Bristol; Mrs. James Egan and Mrs. Edward Frantz, Philadelphia.

Induct New Officers For Mothers' Association

The regular monthly meeting of the Mothers' Association of the Bristol public schools was held last evening in the Auditorium of the high school with Mrs. David Neill, president, presiding. Mrs. Harry Pope installed the new officers for the coming year.

The officers are: Mrs. William Borchers, president; Mrs. Earl McEuen, vice-president; Mrs. Arthur Zug, secretary; Miss Hilda M. Pope, treasurer.

Mrs. Neill, the retiring president, was presented with an occasional chair, a gift from members of the Association and a bouquet of chrysanthemums from the officers. Mrs. S. Wilson Black, the retiring secretary, was presented with a coffee table and a bouquet of chrysanthemums.

The new officers each received a bouquet of chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Neill presented personal gifts to the officers who worked with her during her administration, also to Mrs. Maurice Roche, Mrs. Alfred McLaughlin and Mrs. Pope.

Mrs. Borchers, vice president for the past two years, presented a personal gift to Mrs. Neill. Mrs. Borchers then took charge of the meeting and new business was discussed. It was decided to hold the annual turkey supper at the December meeting of the Association. A social time was enjoyed and refreshments served in the cafeteria. The women of the First Ward had charge of the refreshments.

RELIC OF HECTIC DAYS

"Crime doesn't pay" is the slogan which the authorities, constituted to look after peace and order, have come to regard as the most persuasive three words in the language, so far as their own job is concerned. One of the first to use this expression and to make of it the motto of his life as a reformed criminal was the notorious Pat Crowe, train robber, diamond robber, all-around crook, whose name became known to every person in America in the gay nineties when there was a price of $50,000 on his head, dead or alive, during the hunt for the kidnaper of the son of an Omaha multi-millionaire meat packer.

Pat Crowe is dead at 79 in New York. He was stricken in a dingy Harlem rooming house, penniless at the end of the trail, with nothing to call his own except the memory of his short time of basking in the spotlight, a memory preserved by a ragged and yellowed file of newspaper clippings.

For years after the Omaha exploit he lived quietly and emerged only for occasional talks to groups of young people on the futility of crime. His earnings were meager, but he never returned to his old ways. He turned up in Buffalo, N. Y., one night as a vagrant and enjoyed a few days of publicity and contact with friendly policemen, newspapermen and others whom he regaled with stories of the old days, and who repaid the narrator by looking after his immediate needs and helping him on his way to the next town.

HOME TOWN PRIDE

People should feel pride in their home town, even if they can see plenty of faults in it. There may be many disorderly back yards, many homes that need repair. But even with all those faults, any good town or city like Bristol has plenty of things to be proud of.

There are plenty of fine families, who are working hard to bring up good children, plenty of intelligent people, from whom anyone can learn much. There is a great deal of hard work being done, and useful products made and distributed that benefit all who purchase them.

People should be proud of such a community, and resolve to do their share to make it still better.

The far-sighted Duce is leaving 20,000 Italians in Spain, as a few Sudeten nationals have to be around in case of a quick annexation.

The fear is aired that Hitler some day will ride his high horse into the Swiss Alps to compare it with the same for height.

kin took away all semblance of joy and left the New Dealers frightened and shaken. The Republican victories were of such extent and character as to end for all time the fear that a President, given unlimited money and unmeasured power, had gotten in a position from which he—or his friends—could not be dislodged. Had the New Dealers triumphed as in 1934 or '36, such would have been the situation. The futility of opposition would have been demonstrated and dominance of the forces behind Mr. Roosevelt conceded.

AS IT IS no one can look at the returns and not realize that the Roosevelt control of Congress and the Roosevelt dominance of the Democratic party are things of the past; that the game of running the country with the little Corcoran-Cohen-Lubin-Jackson group of radicals supplying the ideas and pulling the strings behind the scenes is played out; that third-term talk, while it still may be heard from job-holders, is essentially silly. In brief, the elections have answered the question concerning the tenure of office by Mr. Roosevelt and the retention of influence by his Left Wing intimates of the so-called "inner circle" quite emphatically. About these things it is difficult to see how there can be two opinions.

THE other thing made clear by the returns is that at bottom the great bulk of the people of this country are conservative. Scared by an emergency in 1932 and charmed by a colorful and attractive figure in the White House, whose beautiful voice carried confidence and conviction, they followed for six years along lines in which they do not in their hearts believe and in a direction they did not really want to go. For the last eighteen months, gradually grasping the mess which has been made out of the Government, they have been swinging back and away from a leadership which, no matter how glamorous, cannot be reconciled with common sense.

LEGION HEAD TELLS OF SIGNIFICANCE OF LIGHT

Commander Chadwick Delivers Address at Old North Church, in Boston

ADDRESS IS BROADCAST

Legionnaires of this area last night listened with interest to the radio address of Stephen F. Chadwick, National Commander, delivered as part of the National Education Association observance of American Education Week. The address was delivered at Old North Church, Boston, Mass.

Commander Chadwick spoke as follows:

"At a signal light, One if by land, and two if by sea. And I on the opposite shore will be Ready to ride."

And so, the light of two lanterns gave life to the revolutionary spirit of Colonial America inaugurating a chain of circumstances which this evening—one hundred sixty-three years after the event—brings me, a resident of far Seattle, Washington, as the National Commander of The American Legion, to the belfry of Boston's Old North Church, to join with the National Education Association in honoring the people of America, and particularly to the young people of this great country, a message as to the significance of this historic shrine.

Light has, throughout human history, been associated with the advance of man, with the progress of the human family. It was the light of the star in the east that led the wise men of old to the manger in Bethlehem, where was born the One who brought to humankind the message of man's brotherhood to man. It was the signal fires of the tribes that permitted the peace-loving people of earlier times to band together for their common defense. And it was the light of two simple lanterns that stayed Paul Revere and his two associates, Prescott and Hayes, upon their memorable ride.

In our American Legion, in describing our emblem, we refer to the light rays of the sun, which form the background of the emblem, as emblematic of the principles of The American Legion—the light of loyalty, justice, freedom, and democracy, dispelling the darkness of violence, strife, and evil. There are two kinds of light—the physical light, dispelling the physical darkness, but there is a mental light of truth and fact, which dispels the darkness of ignorance.

With the Declaration of Independence written, with the Constitution of the United States promulgated, and with the first ten Amendments, constituting the American Bill of Rights, embodied as a part of the Constitution, great human progress was made. But it was the thought of the great men of the time that people could only be fit for self-government, if they were educated to accept the full responsibilities of citizenship.

You will recall that Thomas Jefferson suggested as his epitaph, that it should be written—that he was the author of the Virginia statute of religious liberty, the author of the American Declaration of Independence, and the founder of the University of Virginia. In other words, he, as one of the great Founders of this Republic, believed that if men would be tolerant, the one toward the other—if they could accept the brotherhood of man and the Fatherhood of God, without the imposition of one man's will upon another, in his communion with Deity, and if the interminable inviolability of the rights of men could be recognized in such a way that no arrogant individual or majority could deprive man of those rights—that then but one thing was required—to insure man in his liberties, his rights, and his happiness.

And that one thing was education—free, public education available to every child in the land regardless of the circumstances of his birth. It was for this reason that Jefferson placed the founding of the University of Virginia, as a great free State University, on a par with the other two great contributions he had made to human welfare, the contributions he made to the establishment and perpetuity of our Nation.

In the consideration of the historic shrines of the past, there are great and impressive lessons for those of us who live today.

Remember, it was more than a year before the signing of the Declaration of Independence that the Colonies, as a result of Paul Revere's ride, were prepared to and did meet, the armed representatives of an arrogant King, first at Lexington and then at Concord at the "rude bridge that arched the flood."

It was there that men, for liberty, bared their breasts, and "fired the shot heard 'round the world." Men stood and fought, and died, not to accomplish their own welfare of the moment, but to establish for you and for me, as rights of men, rights, which up to that time, had not been recognized, rights whose very expression was considered treason.

It was a year and four months later, when the success of the Revolution was in no way assured, when the days were dark, and less determined men would have surrendered, that brave and courageous men met, and signed their names to that solemn Declaration of Rights and Purposes, our Declaration of Independence, and to its establishment, pledged "their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor."

It should give us pause, to counsel with ourselves, as to whether or not we today are willing to sacrifice our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor, to preserve those things for which our forefathers fought. When we consider their heroic example, their blood-stained tracks upon the snow, it should give us a truer conception of what is meant by the words, found in the preamble of the constitution of

The American Legion, "to indicate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and Nation."

The liberties which we enjoy we have today because of our Colonial Fathers' sacrifices and because of the Government which they erected for the preservation of our liberty.

We have made great progress, as a democracy. Other nations have tried democracy, and failed. Individuals of ambition, classes impatient with the processes of democracy, have overthrown their governments and established dictatorships. These dictatorships, in turn, to suppress the undying spirit of freedom which exists in the breasts of their people, have directed the attention of their populace to green fields beyond their borders. These brigand nations, for such they are, invade the lands of other peoples, and the lives, the liberties, and the happiness of the oppressed are destroyed.

Where will their aggrandizement stop? If one moves to take a substantial part of Asia, another, by force of arms, to invade Africa, and another to cut a swath through Europe, can we blind ourselves to the dangers which may come to the Americas?

Again, we take counsel in the wisdom of the Fathers. There was early declared by this Nation of ours the

Monroe Doctrine, designed to keep the hands of foreign aggressors out of the

ALARM SET OFF

PARIS—(INS)—The chilling note of an air raid alarm accidentally set off by a short circuit set all Paris on edge during the war crisis. The alarm, located on the roof of a church in the Paris Bourse quarter, blew for three minutes while traffic jammed, in the streets and anxious Parisiennes rushed from cafes and houses to glance fearfully skyward for a sight of enemy aircraft. The air-raid signs normally are tested each Wednesday.

RELIC OF HECTIC DAYS

"Crime doesn't pay" is the slogan which the authorities, constituted to look after peace and order, have come to regard as the most persuasive three words in the language, so far as their own job is concerned. One of the first to use this expression and to make of it the motto of his life as a reformed criminal was the notorious Pat Crowe, train robber, diamond robber, all-around crook, whose name became known to every person in America in the gay nineties when there was a price of $50,000 on his head, dead or alive, during the hunt for the kidnaper of the son of an Omaha multi-millionaire meat packer.

Pat Crowe is dead at 79 in New York. He was stricken in a dingy Harlem rooming house, penniless at the end of the trail, with nothing to call his own except the memory of his short time of basking in the spotlight, a memory preserved by a ragged and yellowed file of newspaper clippings.

For years after the Omaha exploit he lived quietly and emerged only for occasional talks to groups of young people on the futility of crime. His earnings were meager, but he never returned to his old ways. He turned up in Buffalo, N. Y., one night as a vagrant and enjoyed a few days of publicity and contact with friendly policemen, newspapermen and others whom he regaled with stories of the old days, and who repaid the narrator by looking after his immediate needs and helping him on his way to the next town.

HOME TOWN PRIDE

People should feel pride in their home town, even if they can see plenty of faults in it. There may be many disorderly back yards, many homes that need repair. But even with all those faults, any good town or city like Bristol has plenty of things to be proud of.

There are plenty of fine families, who are working hard to bring up good children, plenty of intelligent people, from whom anyone can learn much. There is a great deal of hard work being done, and useful products made and distributed that benefit all who purchase them.

People should be proud of such a community, and resolve to do their share to make it still better.

The far-sighted Duce is leaving 20,000 Italians in Spain, as a few Sudeten nationals have to be around in case of a quick annexation.

The fear is aired that Hitler some day will ride his high horse into the Swiss Alps to compare it with the same for height.

The least the League could do in the Czechs' case is call Europe's attention to the foot ball penalty for piling on.

With the strapless evening gown, it becomes harder to distinguish check-to-check dancing from straight wrestling.

It's "artistry" or a "bag of cheap tricks" depending on whether you have it or the other fellow.

The romance between that wrestler and the Princess Baba, black sheep of the family, has phift.

The way summer of late has lingered in the lap of autumn is nothing short of risqué.

The Republican victories were of such extent and character as to end for all time the fear that a President, given unlimited money and unmeasured power, had gotten in a position from which he—or his friends—could not be dislodged. Had the New Dealers triumphed as in 1934 or '36, such would have been the situation. AS IT IS no one can look at the returns and not realize that the Roosevelt control of Congress and the Roosevelt dominance of the Democratic party are things of the past; that the game of running the country with the little Corcoran-Cohen-Lubin-Jackson group of radicals supplying the ideas and pulling the strings behind the scenes is played out; that third-term talk, while it still may be heard from job-holders, is essentially silly. About these things it is difficult to see how there can be two opinions.

THE other thing made clear by the returns is that at bottom the great bulk of the people of this country are conservative. Scared by an emergency in 1932 and charmed by a colorful and attractive figure in the White House, whose beautiful voice carried confidence and conviction, they followed for six years along lines in which they do not in their hearts believe and in a direction they did not really want to go. For the last eighteen months, gradually grasping the mess which has been made out of the Government, they have been swinging back and away from a leadership which, no matter how glamorous, cannot be reconciled with common sense.

NO one can consider the extraordinary victory of Mr. Taft over Mr. Bulkley in Ohio, where the New Deal was the unclouded issue; the defeat of Governor Murphy in Michigan, Governor Benson in Minnesota, Governor LaFollette in Wisconsin and not realize that a popular verdict against radicalism has been given. Nor is it possible to add up the Republican gains in House and Senate without understanding that the New Deal dream is over—that the tide has turned. In a nation such as this, popular tides do not run one way for awhile and then suddenly turn in the other direction. Popular tides are slow moving. They have, to run themselves out. They slow down before they stop; they stand still awhile before they begin to flow back. The slowing down began right after the 1936 election; the stop came in 1937 after the court-packing fight; the turn began last summer in the "purge" primaries. The elections Tuesday showed it definitely moving to the right. That it will gain impetus in the next two years is hardly open to question; that it means conservative control over the next Democratic convention is altogether likely. But their gains yesterday do not necessarily mean Republican victory in 1940. That hinges upon many things, one of which is Republican behavior in the next session of Congress; another the Republican proposition two years hence.

LEGION HEAD TELLS OF SIGNIFICANCE OF LIGHT

ADDRESS IS BROADCAST

Legionnaires of this area last night listened with interest to the radio address of Stephen F. Chadwick, National Commander, delivered as part of the National Education Association observance of American Education Week. The address was delivered at Old North Church, Boston, Mass.

Commander Chadwick spoke as follows:

"... At a signal light, One by land, and two by sea, And I on the opposite shore will be Ready to ride."

And so, the light of two lanterns gave life to the revolutionary spirit of Colonial America inaugurating a chain of circumstances which this evening—one hundred sixty-three years after the event—brings me, a resident of far Seattle, Washington, as the National Commander of The American Legion, to the belfry of Boston's Old North Church, to join with the National Education Association in bringing to the people of America, and particularly to the young people of this great country, a message as to the significance of this historic shrine.

Light has, throughout human history, been associated with the advance of man, with the progress of the human family. It was the light of the star in the east that led the wise men of old to the manger in Bethlehem, where was born the One who brought to humankind the message of man's brotherhood to man. It was the signal fires of the tribes that permitted the peace-loving people of earlier times to band together for their common defense. And it was the light of two simple lanterns that started Paul Revere and his two associates, Prescott and Dawes, upon their memorable ride.

In our American Legion, in describing our emblem, we refer to the light rays of the sun, which form the background of the emblem, as emblematical of the principles of The American Legion—the light of loyalty, justice, freedom, and democracy, dispelling the darkness of violence, strife, and evil.

There are two kinds of light—the physical light, dispelling the physical darkness; but there is a mental light of truth and fact, which dispels the darkness of ignorance.

With the Declaration of Independence written, with the Constitution of the United States promulgated, and with the first ten Amendments, constituting the American Bill of Rights, embodied as a part of the Constitution, great human progress was made. But it was the thought of the great men of the time that people could only be fit for self-government, if they were educated to accept the full responsibilities of citizenship.

You will recall that Thomas Jefferson suggested as his epitaph, that it should be written—that he was the author of the Virginia statute of religious liberty, the author of the American Declaration of Independence, and the founder of the University of Virginia. In other words, he, as one of the great Founders of this Republic, believed that if men would be tolerant, the one toward the other—if they could accept the brotherhood of man and the Fatherhood of God, without the imposition of one man's will upon another, in his communion with Deity, and if the interminable violability of the rights of men could be recognized in such a way that no arrogant individual or majority could deprive man of those rights—that then but one thing was required—to insure man in his liberties, his rights, and his happiness.

And that one thing was education—free, public education available to every child in the land regardless of the circumstances of his birth. It was for this reason that Jefferson placed the founding of the University of Virginia, as a great free State University on a par with the other two great contributions he had made to human welfare, the contributions he made to the establishment and perpetuity of our Nation.

In the consideration of the historic shrines of the past, there are great and impressive lessons for those of us who live today.

Remember, it was more than a year before the Signing of the Declaration of Independence that the Colonies, as a result of Paul Revere's ride, were prepared to and did meet, the armed representatives of an arrogant King, first at Lexington and then at Concord

It was there that men, for liberty, bared their breasts, and "fired the shot heard 'round the world." Men stood, and fought, and died, not to accomplish their own welfare of the moment, but to establish for you and for me, as rights of men, rights, which up to that time, had not been recognized, rights whose very expression was considered treason.

It was a year and four months later, when the success of the Revolution was in no way assured, when the days were dark, and less determined men would have surrendered, that brave and courageous men met, and signed their names to that solemn Declaration of Rights and Purposes, our Declaration of Independence, and to its establishment, pledged "their lives, their fortunes, and their sacred honor."

It should give us pause, to counsel with ourselves, as to whether or not we today are willing to sacrifice our lives, our fortunes, and our sacred honor, to preserve those things for which our forefathers fought. When we consider their heroic example, their blood-stained tracks upon the snow, it should give us a truer conception of what is meant by the words, found in the preamble of the constitution of

The American Legion, "to indicate a sense of individual obligation to the community, state and Nation."

The liberties which we enjoy we have today because of our Colonial Fathers' sacrifices and because of the Government which they erected for the preservation of our liberty.

We have made great progress, as a democracy. Other nations have tried democracy, and failed. Individuals of ambition, classes impatient with the processes of democracy, have overthrown their governments and established dictatorships. These dictatorships, in turn, to suppress the undying spirit of freedom which exists in the breasts of their people, have directed the attention of their populace to green fields beyond their borders. These brigand nations, for such they are, invade the lands of other peoples, and the lives, the liberties, and the happiness of the oppressed are destroyed.

Where will their aggrandizement stop? If one moves to take a substantial part of Asia, another, by force of arms, to invade Africa, and another to cut a swath through Europe, can we blind ourselves to the dangers which may come to the Americas?

Again, we take counsel in the wisdom of the Fathers. There was early declared by this Nation of ours the

ALARM SET OFF

PARIS—(INS)—The chilling note of an air raid alarm accidentally set off by a short circuit set all Paris on edge during the war crisis. The alarm, located on the roof of a church in the Paris Bourse quarter, blew for three minutes while traffic jammed in the streets and anxious Parisiennes rushed from cafes and houses to glance fearfully skyward for a sight of enemy aircraft. The air-raid signals normally are tested each Wednesday.

Legion Head Tells Of Significance of Light

Americas. For a period no show of force was required for the enforcement of that policy, but modern inventions have so reduced space and time that, as practical men and women today, we know that so long as brigand nations walk the earth, we must have a defense establishment, capable of preserving and enforcing our own peace.

To the youth of America, The American Legion gives this message: Study human history, consider the significance of its shrines. Consider the cost in blood and treasure of the advancement which has been made by the human family. Accept these advances as your birthright. But be willing to make the same sacrifices for their preservation for your children, as was made to accomplish them as your birthright.

If we have a citizenry thus enlightened—thus imbued with knowledge and with the militant spirit to preserve the gains which, as a human family, we have made, America, as a Nation, will have nothing to fear.

from the engineering standpoint only. Because of the delay on the part of the Pennsylvania State Authority and the Public Works Administration, no definite word has been received as yet concerning the approval of the project.

The new junior-senior high school will be 379 feet long, two classrooms having been removed from the original plan. After consulting with Harrisburg officials, Supervising Principal Haldeman agreed that the changes could be made without serious results.

Declaring that a policeman's good eyes are the front door of a laboratory, Dr. John J. Bridgeman, well-known County Seat pharmacist, speaking on “Chemistry and Crime,” at a meeting of the Bucks County Police Academy in the Court House at Doylestown, said: “The work of the officer is to get the facts in crime investigation because the Courts will not accept anything except facts.”

“Investigating officers are bound to protect as well as detect,” said Dr. Bridgeman, a former member of the faculty of the Philadelphia College of Pharmacy, to about 50 members of the class.

After telling the officers to search for the physical facts, Dr. Bridgeman urged them to call upon chemists and laboratory workers to assist them when in doubt.

“A good officer should know when to ask the laboratory technician to aid him in the investigation,” said Dr. Bridgeman.

Contented Citizenry Is Very Essential

have the privilege of electing to the state legislature, suitable men as our representatives and this can only be accomplished by turning out and voting at election time. Too many of our citizens do not take advantage of this great privilege.

Some projects of our government which become partly our responsibilities through our necessary support are: working on reforestation and conserving of natural resources. These are important to help prevent the wasting of oil, forests, coal, etc. The C. C. C. Corps are one of the finest accomplishments of this administration, helping to beautify and replant our forests. If we do not replant them, the land will deteriorate by erosion. Also the government could help, if the citizens co-operated, in taking precautions against the waste of coal, so that it could be mined at a profit, and at the same time be conserved. The operators are working only the large veins and from seven to nine small veins are wasted to one large one mined.

Today it is hard for people to uphold the ideals of democracy, in a world where democracy seems to be fighting a losing fight, but we do not want to let go of such principles as freedom of worship, of speech, and of the press. These ideals our forefathers struggled and fought for. We

Ask Doctor About This Ideal Way TO LOSE FAT

READ EVERY WORD!

Make up your mind now that you'll lose some of that ugly fat and really enjoy life.

No one can blame you if you don't want to take harmful drugs, go on starvation diets and do backbreaking exercises. No sane woman would! And for sensible women like yourself who really want to reduce yet don't expect miracles overnight—who are willing to faithfully follow a most simple, inexpensive, and pleasant 28-day plan (women considerably overweight naturally require longer periods), we suggest this easy plan.

First of all get on light on fatty foods and sweets. Eat plentifully of lean meats, fresh fruits and vegetables. And for proper functioning be sure to take a half teaspoonful of Kruschen Salts in hot water every morning. And let's get this straight right now about Kruschen—

It is not harmful. It is NOT just one salt as some people may ignorantly believe. Look on the box! You'll see it is a blend of 6 active mineral salts, which when dissolved in water is similar to the famous medicinal waters of European spas where wealthy fat people have gone for years.

A jar of Kruschen costs but a few cents and makes 2 gallons of marvelous mineral health water. Get a jar RIGHT AWAY! At United Drug Co., and druggists everywhere.—(Advertisement).

ON THE SCREENS

BRISTOL

Every person treasures some secret desire which they are afraid to disclose because of fear of ridicule from their fellow workers. In this respect Actor Jimmy Gleason, who is currently to be seen at the Bristol Theatre in Republic's "The Higgins Family" is no different than any other human being.

Jimmy, who made his first stage appearance at the immature age of two months and who has been going at top speed ever since that distant date, has long treasured a secret hope to be starred in a cowboy picture—a good old-fashioned western where he could ride like the wind and "sling" his two six-guns at every villain in the opus. He has never attained his desire, most likely, because he has always been afraid to broach the subject to any producer.

This became known while Jimmy was working on his current film. Quite by accident he was discovered taking a nap in a hidden corner of one of the huge sound stages on the Republic lot. It was between scenes and Jimmy was catching what he calls his "daddy dozen snores." Your reporter came across him and stood by watching for a moment when Jimmy's lips started moving. Bending nearer, the mumbles developed into words something like this, "I'll learn you to steal horses. Reach for your gun, you dog. I'll give you a chance you don't deserve."

Thrills in the strenuous life of a newsreel cameraman, and romance between Clark Gable as the adventurer of the lens and Myrna Loy as a daring aviatrix, come to the Grand Theatre, Thursday and Friday, in "Too Hot to Handle," dramatic story of the love of two people whose lives are a constant quest for excitement. It teams the stars following their smashing success together in "Test Pilot."

Gable and Walter Pidgeon play rival newsreelmen covering fighting in the Orient. Constantly using trick and device to "scoop" each other, they clash when Miss Loy, as the aviatrix, attempts a "mercy flight" with serum, and Gable, barred from the field, reaches it in an ambulance but wrecks her plane. The filming of the "Chinese Big Apple," and finally Miss Loy's dash into the South American wilds to find her lost aviator brother, with Gable following with his camera, are among sensational details, also Gable's filming of a blazing liner from a plane piloted for him by Miss Loy. A special company was sent to Dutch Guiana to film location scenes for the South American episode.

BRISTOL HIGH TO PLAY BURLINGTON ON SAT. AFTERNOON

Annual Grid Contest To Be Played On Burlington Gridiron This Year

"LITTLE BROWN JUG"

Tilt Will Mark Final Game To Be Away From Home This Season

With the football season now swinging down the home stretch, the Cardinals and Gray gridders of Bristol High, under Coach Steve Jaeger, are now ardently at work in preparation for one of the biggest games of the season—the "Little Brown Jug" game, to be played Saturday at Burlington.

This tilt will mark the final game to be played abroad by the Cards this season since they wind up the campaign at home against Newtown and Morrisville in the last two games. But this game, not like most of the other traveling games, is close at home. And, as usual, Bristol will be well represented with a large following at this "big-little" fracas.

There are at least three good reasons why this contest is one of the year's most outstanding on the schedule of both Bristol and Burlington. 1. Because there has always been such a keen rivalry between the two schools in sports.

2. Because the clubs are always strong and evenly matched.

3. Because the sacred trophy, the "Little Brown Jug," is at stake in this game. Instituted back in 1933, the ancient jug has been a prize of the tilt that has been valued by both schools and is highly sought after as a token to the winner.

Last year, Burlington crossed the Delaware and captured the prize when they defeated Bristol, 18-6, after Bristol had held the trophy for two seasons as a result of winning in 1935, 14-6, and again in 1936, 19-6. Previous to the Cardinals' initial win, Burlington had possession of the trophy in spite of the fact that the first two games played by the two schools in the renewed series ended in ties. The reason they held it was because they had won the last game before the relationship of the schools was continued again.

Bristol has the edge in the series so far, however. They have conquered the Burls twice, while Burlington has won once with the other two games winding up in ties. But Burlington hopes to catch up on the Cardinals this year by taking the measure of the invaders for the second time and thereby even up the series at two games each.

And at the present time, they appear to have the edge to do just that. For a look at the records will show the Burls have a decided edge over Bristol. In six games, Burlington has emerged the victor on four occasions, while dropping the other pair of tilts. At the same time, the Cards have a record of a trio of conquests as compared to four setbacks in seven encounters this season.

The Burls' most outstanding triumph was scored just last week when they upset a strong Riverside aggregation, 20-0, who had previously won four games, lost one, and held the strong Moorestown outfit to a 0-0 tie. The latter club, incidentally, took the scalp of the Burls, 20-0, while the only other school to knock off Coach Randle's boys this season to date was Morrisville, who trimmed them, 12-0. On the victory side, the big Blue and White outfit has scored decisions over Palmyra, Wildwood and Bogota before knocking off Riverside handily, 20-0.

EDGELY

Among the many prizes listed for Ladies' Auxiliary card party, in Headley Manor fire house, tonight, are: Smoking stand, glassware, vegetable bin, slips, etc. The public is invited.

Yardley Legion Post Building New Home

YARDLEY, Nov. 10.—With the loss of their headquarters by fire, on April 22, Knowles-Doyle Post members of American Legion, were forced to take some steps to replace their home. Under the commandship of Johnson H. Miller, the old ruins were removed, and a new building designed by Nelson Whitehead. The members of the Legion have been most faithful, giving of their services over week-ends and holidays laying out the building, and constructing a basement. The labor for the construction of this building is all being donated by Legion members and their friends who are interested in seeing a community center for the use of the community.

The Knowles-Doyle post was organized in 1919 under the sponsorship of James E. Groome, who gathered all the veterans together.

For a number of years the Legion has had as headquarters the old Oak Grove School, just south of here, with William Scott, as caretaker. On April 22, the building was destroyed by fire. In the removal of the burnt timbers, a cornerstone was found bearing the inscription "25th Day 5th month, 1793. C. P." This was chipped in the stone in old English printing.

The new home will consist of a one-story 45'x50' ft. with a club room in the basement, a kitchen, men's and ladies' rest rooms, and a large reception room.

The ladies auxiliary is co-operating with the Legion in the raising of funds for the purchase of materials for the structure. They are planning suppers, card parties, novelty parties, and will sell Christmas trees for the raising of funds for this purpose.

With a membership of 42, the Gavel Bell was presented to the Yardley Legion for the greatest percentage of gain in membership during 1938, at the Bucks-Montgomery County session. In addition to Commander Miller, the other officers include: Vice Commander, Theodore Daugherty; Adjutant, Alex. J. Neely; finance officer, Carl B. Elfvig; chaplain, Rev. Kenneth MacDonnald, and sergeant-at-arms, Thos. Spencer.

The first of the events for the raising of money will be a card party to be held in the club rooms of St. Ignatius R. C. Church, on November 21, under the direction of the Legion and the auxiliary.

Bandits Get Cancelled Checks

Philadelphia, Nov. 10.—Six armed bandits, apparently convinced they were about to make an unprecedented haul, held up a Railway Express agency mid-city station today, but got only cancelled checks for their pains.

Armed with a sub-machine-gun, shot-guns and revolvers, the men invaded a loading platform where two Express employees were loading a truck with bulky canvas bags bearing the names of up-state banks.

Presumably thinking the bags contained money, the bandits tossed 26 of them into a car, after warning the employees against an outcry. Actually, police said, all the men got were cancelled checks being returned to the banks. They missed $40,000 by sixty seconds.

Kemal Ataturk Dies

Istanbul, Nov. 10.—(INS)—Kemal Ataturk, president and founder of modern Turkey, succumbed today to the ravages of a liver ailment.

The 58-year-old president, who fought through wars and revolts to become the first of the post-world war dictators, died at 9:05 a. m.

Judge James Proud of The Confidence Voters Showed Him

The Democrats retained control of the State Senate but by a narrow one-vote margin. The new Senate lineup: Democrats, 25; Republicans, 24, with 26 votes needed for a majority. A switch at any time of one Democratic vote would give the Republicans a tie and consequent control of the upper House, because, in such an event, the presiding officer, who will be the newly-elected Republican candidate for Lieutenant-Governor, Samuel S. Lewis, casts the deciding vote. There are several Democratic Senators classified as "insurgents." The Republicans captured 18 of the 26 Senate seats at stake.

The GOP gains in the Congressional battles were impressive also, the Republicans regaining control of the Congressional delegation, garnering at least 15 seats, a gain of 12, while the Democrats held 15.

Governor-elect James will be inaugurated January 17. His induction into office will immediately plunge him into the middle of many grave problems of state, among them the unemployment problem and what is to be done for the ailing anthracite industry.

It was expected that the new Governor would recommend following his induction into office a reduction in taxes in line with his campaign promises. This, he has stated, will encourage business in the State, result in greater revenues for the State, and thus permit it to fulfill its obligations to the needy without added financial burdens.

But such victory problems were still more than two months distant and in the meantime Republicans prepared to enjoy to the full their victory. In Harrisburg, a giant parade is scheduled for tonight, a curtain raiser to the one which will follow on January 17, when the Republicans return to power after a four-year interlude, their first in 44 years.

In Plymouth, happy crowds of celebrants swirled about the home of the Governor-elect. Telegrams of congratulations poured in from every portion of the State.

Among them was one from former Attorney General Charles J. Margiotti, dismissed Earle cabinet official, which read: "Congratulations on your splendid victory. The people of Pennsylvania have demonstrated that they insist on decent and honest government."

Another from Chief Justice Kephart of the Supreme Court read: "My sincerest congratulations. A wonderful victory and a great future before you."

And from Governor Earle: "My heartiest congratulations and deepest sympathy."
